

ABSTRACT

A method for the conditioning of an extracorporeal
5 device is described, as well as a method for extracorporeal extraction of toxic material from mammalian body fluids in connection with diagnosis or treatment of a mammalian condition or disease, in which methods
reagents having the ability to extract toxic material 10 from mammalian body fluids are involved, and an extracorporeal device comprising said reagent.

15

20

Election for publication: Figure 3

25